Junior Play Said to Have Lots of Fun

Billy to Be Given Tomorrow Night at Auditorium

The Junior class play "Billy" will be given tomorrow night at the Auditorium. The story is one of youth and love. The path of true love runs smoothly, the past says, but in "Billy" this smooth path is filled with ruts by a prospective mother-in-law and a fatal set of false teeth. The cast should be a good one. Reports are that they are working hard to make this the best play Torrance High has produced.

Torrance Elks Asked to Ball

The members of Elks Lodge 1378 living in Torrance are especially invited to attend the Annual Charity Ball, December 7 in the Mandarin Ballroom in Redondo. This is a splendid opportunity to get acquainted with your neighbors, as all Elks and their friends are urged to attend, also a chance to share in the great good that this organization does for the needy ones at Christmas. The ball itself will be full of life and fun, splendid music and interesting concessions, the aim of the committee being to make the evening one you will long remember. Plenty of room and plenty of fun for everybody!

TOWNE TALK

"Just for Fun" By RAS BERRY

Sam Levy was showing off his daughter Norma and showing some company how well she could talk and Sam says elephant and she says elephant and he says hippopotamus and she says hippopotamus and Sam says monkey and she says papa. And everybody laughed but Sam and Sam's missus she laughed and Sam says Norma say something like that about mama and Norma says nice mama. Nobuddy was hurt.

Down to the harbor when Mr. Hoover boarded the U. S. S. Maryland there was a little boy with his mama and he says is Mr. Hoover the president and she says no but he will be next March and the little boy says well if he isn't president why do they let him ride on a battleship and she says well they are establishing a precedent and he says oh I see they have to establish Mr. Hoover before he can be president and she says no I said establishing a precedent not a president and he says well its the same thing and so she didn't say no more.

And in a minute he says they are firing guns from the fleet and why are they firing guns. And she says they fire a salute of 21 guns for Mr. Hoover.

And he says how many would they fire if Mr. Smith had been elected and her answer was drowned out in the laughter of the crowd that was standing around.

We got a adv. in this wka paper that came by telegraph and it was about 1,000 was long and if we had what it cost to send that telegraph to every paper in the country why we wouldn't care whether we run the adv. or not.

Jack Hanson is sure excited over the new Chevle 6-cylinders which is coming out Jan. 1 and he says everybody should ought to make a new yrs. resolution to buy one.

But I says that wouldn't do you no good Jack unless you could deliver em all off New Yrs. day because by Jan. 2 all the resolves would be broke.

Machines Attract Crowds

(Continued on Last Page) bright threshold of a new and brilliant destiny. Great development in industry beckons us all on to greater things. This development charges us all—citizens and newspaper publishers together—with new and heavy responsibilities. It is with a deep appreciation of our share in these responsibilities that we take the occasion to re-dedicate ourselves to the cheering task of promoting the advancement of our city.

"Today hundreds of citizens are inspecting our new plant. They are watching automatic printing presses speeding out industrial printing for those industries which make this city and this district great. They have watched type-setting machines casting messages in metal. They have watched the fine men of a modern publishing and printing plant obeying the dictates of human beings.

"Machinery in operation is but an expression of the human will. This expression is fruitless and futile unless it is grounded in some kind of a worthy ideal.

"Supported, by an enlightened citizenry, by the people of a city and district striving forward to greater achievements we shall as publishers endeavor to direct those machines in a manner reflecting the needs and desires of this community.

"May the growth and development which beckon us onward bring rewards to all. Yours for a bigger Torrance and a better Torrance. "The Torrance Herald and The Lomita News.

In Minnesota there stands a law which permits suspension of any publication of an inflammatory nature. Recently the Minneapolis Saturday Press, a small weekly publication attacked certain public officials, declared them corrupt. The law took charge, ordered the paper suspended. The paper fought, basing its case on the constitution's guarantee of a free press. The Minnesota Supreme Court upheld the suspension injunction. Enraged the great Chicago Tribune, jealous of press freedom, offered its staff of noted attorneys to help the little paper fight its case to the United States Supreme Court. Other large papers, organizations of publishers voted funds to the cause. This week the California Press Association unanimously passed a resolution and free endorsing free speech and free press and will present it to the next state legislature. The Minnesota case called forth the resolution.
